HENRY WARE.

Class Secretary.

FRED WADSWORTH MOORE.

TO THE CLASS.

THE second Report is intended to be a record of the members of the Class since leaving college. Most of the material has been furnished by the men themselves, though in many cases I have noted items of news that have come to my attention from outside sources.

Except in the list in the first part of the Report, I have not distinguished between permanent and temporary members of the Class and special students, as there is now no apparent reason for such classification. In the text of the Report I have omitted the names of all temporary members and special students who have not replied to notices, and about whom I have no news. I have, however, retained the names of all who received degrees. I think I may speak for my successor by saying that he will be glad to restore to the list any of these dropped men who may express a wish to that effect.

With this Report I tender my resignation as secretary. I feel that I have been and am likely to be altogether too busy to give the time and attention necessary to do the work in a satisfactory manner. Inasmuch as there are several members of the Class who are desirous of undertaking the work of secretary and have the time to devote to it, I feel that my resignation is for the best interest of the Class.

FRED W. MOORE.

Married at Woodbury, Vt., July 16, 1893, to Emma Lucy Lyford.

CHARLES RUSSELL BARDEEN.

"After leaving college I came here to Baltimore to study medicine at the Johns Hopkins Medical School. I graduated last June (1897) with the first class graduated from this department of the university. On graduation I spent a few months on the medical service of the Johns Hopkins hospital, and then in October I took the position of Assistant of Anatomy in the Medical School. In the Medical School I helped, with J. L. Nichols, '93, to found the 'Society of Pithotomists' [keg-tappers], but otherwise I have joined no club or societies since leaving college except the Harvard Club of Maryland.

"I enclose a copy of an article I wrote on the pathology of superficial burns."

CHARLES LOWELL BARLOW.

"After graduation I returned to the Law School and received the degree of LL.B. in 1896. The winter of 1896 and 1897 I spent in Washington, D. C., as Mr. Justice Gray's private secretary. In October, 1897, I entered the law office of Strong & Cadwallader, 40 Wall Street, New York. I was admitted to the New York Bar in January, 1896."

WALTER LEWIS BARRELL.

Spent the two years following graduation in the Harvard Divinity School. Has not replied to recent notices.

EDWIN BARTLETT BARTLETT.

Since leaving college in '91 has been in business in Boston, and is now treasurer of the Brookline Gas Light Company.

MURRAY BARTLETT.

"In the fall of 1893 I entered the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church at New York City, from which I was graduated in May, 1896. During my last year in the Seminary I was a member of the staff of St. George's Church, New York. On my ordination to the ministry by Bishop Potter in May, 1896, I became the assistant minister in Grace Church, New York. During the fall of 1896–97 I was the afternoon preacher on Sundays in Grace Church. In July, 1897, I left Grace Church to become the rector of the new St. Paul's Church at Rochester, N. Y. I was one of the appointed speakers at the Church Congress at Pittsfield, Mass., in 1898. I am a member of the Harvard Club of New York, and of the Country and Genessee Valley clubs of Rochester."

GUY BROWN BENNETT.

Is assistant cashier of the National Farmers' Bank of Owatonna, Minn. Is president of the Elk Bicycle Association; treasurer of the Owatonna Athletic Association; president of the Bachelors' Club; and a member of the Commercial Union, and of the Young Men's Republican Club and the Beethoven Musical Association, all of Owatonna.

RALPH WILHELM BERGENGREN.

"In the fall of '93 I returned to Cambridge with a laudable intention; which intention was in due time forwarded to the Street Department, Hades. And that used up a year very comfortably.

"In the fall of '94 I became an Art Student in Boston, living in Lynn, Boston, and on the trains between, — endeavoring meantime to attain some of the simpler luxuries of life through the medium of alleged humor and investing the bulk of my earnings at the Post Office; which, by the way, is as near as I have yet been to anything political. And that used up a year very uncomfortably.

"My profession or business? The Boston Globe has given it a title, Poet Cartoonist. I rest content with that title. My imagination can invent nothing more descriptive.

"Save that of said Poet Cartoonist and of Saunterer to the Boston Budget I have held no positions of profit, trust, or honor; I have not even been engaged.

"I have had published a certain amount of what is technically known as "stuff." Life, The Youth's Companion, Outing, Godey's, St. Nicholas, and some others have published a little of it, — I have sometimes suspected as little as possible.

"I am a member of the Press Club and of the Pewter Mugs; my addresses in public have usually been delivered to the waiters.

"In conclusion I have travelled to New York, Bermuda, and the Charles River."

HENRY NEWHALL BERRY.

Received the degree of LL.B. from the Harvard Law School in 1896; has travelled abroad in Europe since his graduation; is at present practising law in Boston with the firm of Nichols & Cobb, 40 Water Street. His permanent address is 238 Ocean Street, Lynn, Mass.

Married on July 7, 1897, to Isabel M. Winship of Allston, Mass.

RUDOLPH MICHAEL BINDER.

After graduation preached for two years at West Park, N. Y., then went to the University of Chicago, where he studied Philosophy and systematic theology for two years, receiving the degree of B.D.; graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York City in June, 1898. Has written magazine articles, among others "Glimpses of the History of Hungary," in Progress, and "Religious Instruction in Germany," in The Standard. Has been at Grace Chapel, New York City, for a year working as curate of Dr. W. R. Huntington; is also teaching in the Amity Bible Workers' School and in St. Mary's School.

RALPH BISBEE.

Received the degree of LLB. from the University of the State of New York in 1895; has been practising law in Portland, Oregon, since September, 1895. Writes that his "occupation has consisted in principally in paying rent,until 'my little body is aweary of this great world.'" Also writes, in answer to the question as to marriage, "A young man married is a young man marred." To the request for other news of interest to the Class he answers, "In lieu of news, may I, please, sir, substitute a query, namely, —

"How long can a man live (exist if you please) on a reputation for being conscientious?"

DEXTER BLAGDEN.

Is in the banking business in New York City; has been with the firm of Haskier, Wood & Co., and is now with Clark, Dodge & Co. Is a member of the Harvard Club and the University Club of New York.

ARTHUR BLAKE.

Is with the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters. He went to Athens in May, 1896, on the B. A. A. team which competed at the Olympian Games. He ran in the Marathon race, but, as he expresses it, "lingered by the wayside." He writes as follows: —

"To tell the truth, my existence since college has been more or less of a blank. I am in the insurance business and am getting along fairly well. I have not set the world on fire, and do not expect or wish to, as I would then have to pay for it. As far as the ladies are concerned, I still love anything that wears skirts and has a pair of winning eyes; there is no single one on whom I have any claim or expect to win. If you know any one I might like send her around and let us talk it over. By the way, an account of my travels may be had in any of the Boston papers of May, 96."

GEORGE BATY BLAKE AND FRANCIS STANTON BLAKE.

Have been travelling most of the time since graduation; around the world in 1893–95; to Japan in 1895, and again in the spring of 1898.

Has written a "Short History of Chemistry," published in the Pharmaceutical Era. Spent the summer abroad in 1895, visiting Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Holland, England, Wales, and Ireland. Married on December 29, 1896, at Cleveland, Ohio, to Marian Booth Foster.

RALPH HARTT BOWLES.

"The two years immediately following my graduation I spent in Constantinople as a private tutor in the household of a naturalized Armenian. As my employer was a man of wealth and social influence, and as his business relations with the Turkish government were very intimate, I had unusual opportunities for making myself acquainted with the city and the life of its cosmopolitan population. The city itself is of course full of romantic interest to the student, and the life of the natives, although it has already taken on a European veneer, is still picturesque. One constantly meets people of all nationalities who have been brought to the city by business, pleasure, or official appointment, and who are made especially interesting by their extensive travels and wide experience. The wonderful natural beauty of Constantinople and the surrounding country raises life there above the commonplace. Every morning brings some new color effect, and every evening some fresh play of light on picturesque landscape. During my stay in Constantinople I took a horseback ride through the Troad, visiting the sites of Troy and the ancient cities lying near it, and the more modern city of Alexandria Troas. I also made a visit to Brusa, the old Turkish capital, the ancient Prusa, capital of Bithynia. Both these visits I took in the spring, when the country was a paradise of delicate coloring, — trees budding and fresh grass and early flowers springing up under my horse's feet.

"Returning from Europe I spent the college year of 1895–96 in the Graduate School at Harvard, studying English language and literature. The following year I was instructor in English in Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill. Last September I entered on my duties as instructor in English and History in the Phillips Exeter Academy, where I now am. I have not been fortunate enough to distinguish myself by writing books or magazine articles to make overloaded bookshelves groan; nor have I attempted politics or anything else exciting. I am a humble pedagogue." Received the degree of Ph.D. in 1896.

GEORGE HALE BRABROOK.

Has not been heard from.

FRANCIS BURKE BRANDT.

From 1892 to 1894 was instructor in English and Mathematics at the Columbia Grammar School in New York City, and also a student at Columbia College, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1895; from 1894 to 1895 was a University Fellow in philosophy at Columbia College; was for a time Instructor in English and History, and afterwards professor of Pedagogy and in charge of the School of Pedagogy in the Central High School of Philadelphia. Is a member of the National Educational Association; of the American Psychological Association; of the Educational Club of Philadelphia; president of the Herhart Club of Philadelphia. Writes, "I am not desirous of making public my life history."

EDWARD HEMAN CARPENTER.

"In August, 1893, I began to work with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, as a special agent, and have been with them ever since. On the 1st of January, 1895, I married Miss Lillian Sanders Cummings, daughter of Charles Henry and Harriet Elizabeth Cummings, at the First Parish Church, Brookline, and when we celebrated our first anniversary there were three of us to take part in it, instead of two, for our daughter Elizabeth had come in the meantime — on the 29th of December. In September, 1895, I was elected to the Republican Town Committee to fill the place made vacant by my father's death, which had occurred on the 8th of July, and I am still on the Committee, being vice-chairman for the ensuing year. I am on the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Republican Club of Brookline, and am a Director of the Brookline Co-operative Bank. In February, 1897, I was elected treasurer of the Brookline First Parish Club, and am one of the Executive Committee, ex officio. I have been for several years a member of the Riverdale Casino, and served two years on one of the minor committees. Besides these, I am a member of the Boston Life Underwriters' Association and the Brookline Education Society. My present home address is Brookline, where I have lived for the last twenty years."

EDWARD CONWAY CULLINAN.

Fills out his blank as follows: "Residence quite useless, inasmuch as I've flitted about, not unlike the busy honey-gatherers or lazy drone, with San Francisco the main hive. Occupations not a few. First, journalism in Rochester, N. Y., for two years; then a salt sea dog on the tempestuous Pacific for quite a year and a half; then a few months of semi-starvation budded me into a soldier of fortune with the cares of a racing stable, superinducing baldness." To the question as to marriage, he answers, "Not guilty." To the question on membership in clubs, etc., he answers, "A veritable nomad on land and sea, time for any of the above has not been vouchsafed me, save for a passive interest taken in the Iroquois Club, breed political and Democratic, in San Francisco." Has taken part in politics "merely as an observer and auditor, casting my vote as a humble citizen. The game is too fierce to be of it." Offices of profit, honor, etc.: "Paymaster on the Oregon Pacific fleet for thirteen months in 1893–94." Publications: "Books or pamphlets, none. Hundreds of columns, however, in the daily press of several cities, treating everything in the gamut of provincial human interest, from dog fights to social functions. Morgue matters was the first round of the ladder; then a sporting and theatrical editor, and later matriculated an editorial paragrapher." Journeys, etc.: "A half-dozen uninteresting trips from ocean to ocean, and, while purser and paymaster in the merchant marine, once to Juneau, Alaska, once to Panama, thrice to Japan and China by the northern route, and countless short voyages between Oregon and California on coasters. None pleasure junkets, but all business."

Since graduation has lived at home, entering his father's office to practice law; was admitted to the Wayne County bar in June, 1895; is now a partner with his father in the firm of Henry M. & Divie B. Duffield. Received the degree of LL.B. from the Detroit College of Law. Is a member of the Michigan Club, Detroit Naval Reserve, vice-president of the Detroit Boat Club, and president of the Scriblerus Club. In 1892 travelled abroad through Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, France, and England. Writes further as follows: —

"My life since leaving college has been most uneventful, revolving around the one attempt to gain a few clients. It seems as slow at a profession as most people complain it is in commercial occupations."

The following account was written by Duffield for the University Records, but the secretary is sure that it will be of interest to every member of the class, and therefore inserts it.

"When the war broke out I had been for four years a member of the Michigan State Naval Brigade (commonly known as the 'Naval Reserve'), and had advanced by successive examinations from a Landsman to a Bo's'n'mate, first class.

"April 25, 1898, the Governor of Michigan called the volunteer forces of the State into active service as a home guard. It was impossible for the Federal Government to call our brigade into service as a body, but with the assurance that we should be kept together and should receive the same rating as those we held from the State, we responded to a call for volunteers received April 28.

"April 29, 235 strong, we left for the Norfolk Navy Yard to enlist individually in the U. S. Navy 'for one year unless sooner discharged.' From April 30 to May 7 we lived upon the U. S. receiving ship 'Franklin,' an old hulk, during which time we were very carefully examined physically.

"May 5 we were sworn into the service, and on May 7, after cleaning the 'Franklin,' we were transported to the auxiliary cruiser 'Yosemite' then lying at the docks of the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Company, Newport News, Va. There were 1000 men aboard of her, working day and night to prepare her for actual service. We first had to clean her from stem to stern and from truck to keelson; then we had to put aboard provisions for three months; then load great quantities of ammunition for 6-pounders and five-inch guns. This work, from 4.30 A. M. to 9 P. M., lasted from May 9 to 16 inclusive. Of course drills were interspersed at every possible chance. Late in the evening of the 16th we warped out into the stream, and early the 17th we moved down to Fortress Monroe. Here we lay until May 30 busy at all kinds of drills, making ourselves familiar with our duties, and once running out to sea for a two days' practice with our great guns.

"May 31 we started south for Key West, convoying the U. S. L. H. 'Ameria,' loaded with ammunition for the fleet at Key West. The trip down was uneventful except for sighting a strange war ship, not in the war paint of our navy. We were called to quarters and prepared for action, which seemed imminent enough to shake us well. She proved to be the 'Marietta,' which had escorted the 'Oregon' up the coast.

"We reached Key West June 3. Lay here five days drilling, finally coaling for 24 hours at a stretch preparatory to sailing for the Havana blockade, whither we departed June 7 in the morning. Reporting to the flag ship 'Amphitrite' at four o'clock the same afternoon, we took our station on the blockade and lay to under the lights of Morro Castle until three in the morning.

"June 8 we started with the 'Panther' with 700 marines aboard for the fleet at Santiago. We passed the fleet pickets at night, with many a hair-raising call to quarters, and finally reported to the flag-ship U. S. S. 'New York' off Santiago Harbor, June 10. We were at once sent back with the 'Panther' to Guantanamo Bay to land the marines there. Early in the afternoon of this day all the small boats were used to carry these marines ashore. I was the petty officer in charge of one of the small boats, and immediately landed and planted my boat flag upon the island. This flag, I believe, was the first to mark the permanent occupation of Cuban soil by the United States; or, to put it another way, the flag we planted on the 10th of June, metaphorically speaking, was never hauled down, while the two which were planted on the island ahead of this one were.

"All the morning of the 11th we were busy landing the camp equipment of the marines, and in the afternoon reported again to the fleet off Santiago, doing blockading duty all night.

"June 12 we started around the island of Jamaica in search of the 'Purissima Concepcion,' a Spanish vessel loaded with munitions of war. As we were entering the harbor of Kingston on the morning of June 16, but still outside the three-mile limit, we sighted a vessel which our captain (Commander Emory) would not go after. Imagine our chagrin when we had dropped anchor in the harbor to learn from the U. S. consul that the vessel we were after had just left the harbor. None of the crew have any explanation to make; that is for the captain and the Government.

"After coaling we sailed for the fleet at Santiago, June 17, reaching there on the 19th. June 20 to 23 we were busy coaling in Guantanamo Bay, and on the 23d weighed anchor for San Juan, Puerto Rico, where we reported to Captain Sigsbee on the 25th.

"On the 26th the 'St. Paul' (Captain Sigsbee) stopped an Englishman, who reported that the 'St. Paul' had done much injury to the torpedo boat in the harbor, but that they were working on her day and night and that she would be out in two days. The next morning Sigsbee said that he must leave for coal and supplies and some repairs, and that he would stop at the Mole St. Nicholas and cable Sampson to send us reinforcements. However, we were left entirely alone on this blockade from June 26 to July 14, when we were relieved by the 'New Orleans.' During this time we drilled incessantly, and held up vessels innumerable. The invariable order every night was 'Have your lookouts keep a bright look out for torpedo boats, as they are coming out to-night.'

"June 28 early in the morning we sighted, out of a rain squall, a vessel making for the harbor. We tried to head her off, but she beached herself under the protection of the guns of the harbor. We began the work of destruction at once and kept at it for two hours under the fire of imitation Krupp guns and the fire from two gunboats and the torpedo boat. We withdrew for breakfast and then resumed the work for another two hours of fun (?). Kind Providence was with us, as a single hit would have put us completely at the mercy of the enemy. The vessel was of no further use to Spain when we had finished with her.

"The sensations which one has in a sea fight must be quite different from those one experiences in a land engagement. Instead of the incessant crack, crack of musketry around your ears, you watch for a puff of smoke, and then wait anywhere from 15 to 35 seconds for the projectile to strike. This waiting, knowing that a hundred pounds of cold steel is coming your way, is trying, and the quavering scream of the shell only permits you a small respite before you are watching for another.

"This engagement was really a very severe one, but owing to some feeling against the Michigan Reserves on the part of some of the naval officials of high rank we have hardly ever received our due mention. Even the President gets us mixed up with the 'Yankee,' and gives her the credit of landing the marines, whereas she was not in the harbor that day. Our engagement summed up reads like this: 'On the one hand a converted cruiser, on the other a fort, sand batteries, two gunboats, and a torpedo boat. The result was a transport hopelessly beached, and a gunboat severely injured.'

"Our first news of Cervera's attempt to get out of Santiago harbor was received July 12, the report stating that some of the vessels had escaped. We were single-handed outside their nearest harbor; sensation not pleasant.

"On June 14 the 'New Orleans' relieved us with orders to coal and provision preparatory to joining Watson's fleet for Spain. By the time we had coaled, the war was practically over, and we went north, and were eventually discharged at Detroit, August 22, 1898.

"Our hardships were those usually experienced: plenty of severe manual labor with little and poor stuff to eat. We always had a dry place to sleep, although our average was eleven hours in forty-eight.

"Our losses were, one who died before we sailed for the South, and one, the saddest case, an inmate of an asylum, the result of a sunstroke.

"You can well imagine that the work was hard when one — myself — who did not have a sick day hardly, lost forty pounds."

Since September 1, 1893, has been in the office of the Fiskdale Mills, manufacturers of print cloths, 87 Milk Street, Boston.

CHARLES HENRY FISKE, Jr.

"Since graduation I have led a quiet and uneventful life. In the winter of 1893 I went to Savannah, Georgia, on business for my father, and on returning in the spring of 1894 I decided to enter the Harvard Law School. It was an easy matter to learn enough of two of the required five first-year courses to pass them at the spring examinations, especially since I was greatly helped by the kindness of F. H. J. Gade. Two others I mastered by myself in the summer, passing them in the fall. I then entered the school in the fall of '94 as a second-year student, thus catching up with the other members of my Class, who had entered the school the previous year. Immediately at the close of the second year, on June 20, 1895, I was married to Mary Duncan Thorndike, only daughter of Samuel Lothrop and Rose Anna (Wells) Thorndike, at Christ Church, Cambridge. I was graduated from the school in June, '96, with the degree of LL. B. While at the Law School I was a member of the Ames-Gray Law Club, and was elected permanent secretary of the Class of 1896, H. L. S.

"I was admitted to the Suffolk bar in March, 1897. I am at present engaged in the practice of law at 60 Congress Street, Boston." (He was for a year with Ropes, Gray, & Loring at 60 State Street.)

"On the 3d of December, 1896, a son was born to us. He was christened Charles Henry Fiske, 3d, after my father and myself. Should he go to college he will be the fifth in direct descent of my family to do so. I hope he will be in the same class as Winsor's, Weld's, Walcott's, and Emmet's boys. On November 20, 1898, my second child, a daughter, was born. Her name is Cornelia Robbins Fiske.

"The only political club with which I am associated is the Massachusetts Reform Club, of which I am assistant secretary and treasurer. Since my wedding journey to Europe I have hardly been away from this State, and have managed to keep fairly busy at the law, in which I take the keenest interest."

HERBERT LINCOLN FLINT.

FREDERICK AARON FREARK, A.B. (Blackburn Univ.), 1891.

Has not been heard from.

ROBERT TILLINGHAST FRENCH.

Died at Toronto, Canada, November 16, 1897. See first Report, p. 128. The following tribute from a classmate was received too late for insertion in the first Report: —

"He had worked in the Eagle Manufacturing Works in Davenport, the Sylvan Steel Works of Moline, Ill., and up to the time of his last illness was in Homestead, Penn., studying the open-hearth process of steel making. He was elected captain of Co. B, 2d Regiment Iowa National Guard, and in a few weeks succeeded in clearing off the company's indebtedness of many thousand dollars. The workingmen of Davenport and Moline were devoted to him. He was destined to be their employer, and they felt in him a true man and leader of men. His steady will, his strength of helpfulness, his charm and energy of mind and body, his perfectly genuine humanity made better and more beautiful the life of every man, woman, and child who knew him. Two gold medals bear his name, one of them offered for excellence in drill in Co. B, the other for excellence in creative literature in the State University of Iowa."

SOLOMON LOUIS FRIDENBERG.

"Since graduating my residence has shifted between Cambridge, Philadelphia, and Western New York, pursuing private studies and for a time engaged in journalism in Philadelphia. While there I was identified with the Athletic Club of Philadelphia (formerly A. C. S. U.), the Browning Club, and Academy of Natural Sciences, and the Harvard Club of Philadelphia. Here I belong to the Harvard Club at Buffalo. At present I am residing at my farm in Willink, N. Y. (a substation of East Aurora, N. Y., and seventeen miles out of Buffalo)."

LEE MAX FRIEDMAN.

Returned to the Law School, receiving the degree of LL.B. [cum laude] in 1895; was admitted to the Suffolk bar December, 1895. John Lowell in Boston in 1896; practised law by himself in Boston in 1897–98, and was assistant attorney for the Metropolitan Park Commission. Was graduate member of the Harvard Athletic Committee in 1896 and 1897; is a member of the Executive Committee of the Athletic Association of Harvard Graduates; is also a member of the Myopia Hunt Club, the Country Club of Brookline, the Union Boat Club, and the Pypowder Law Club. Was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps on May 20, 1898; served at the Charlestown Navy Yard until July 13, and then went on board the U. S. S. "Yankee" in command of the Marine Guard. Sailed at once for Santiago, and remained there along the Cuban and Haytian coast on blockade duty and capturing prizes until the end of the war. Ordered off the "Yankee" at Philadelphia November 25, and honorably discharged from service January 9, 1899. Is at present a partner in the firm of Norman & Company, bankers, 66 State Street, Boston.

WILLIAM HARRY FURBER.

Is in the wholesale lumber business with the firm of Furber, Stockford & Co., Boston.

FREDERICK HERMAN JOHAN GADE.

Took two years at the Law School, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1895. Has since been practising law in Chicago as junior partner in the firm of Wells & Gade, until 1896; then for a time alone, until he formed a partnership with C. B. Pike ('93), on January 1, 1898. Is a member of the University Club, the Saddle & Cycle Club, and the Harvard Club of Chicago. Went abroad in the summer of 1896 with C. B. Pike, spending the greater part of the summer at his home in Norway, when he was visited by B. L. Hand ('93) and D. R. Vail ('93). Has made several political speeches before Norwegians in Chicago, and on May 17, 1897, the Norwegian National Day, delivered the oration in honor of the day before an assembly of several thousand Norwegians, at Chicago. Married May 25, 1897, at Chicago, to Alice Garfield King.

ALBERT HALE.

"I entered the banking business in October, 1893, in the employ of Benjamin Fisher, '90; in December, 1893, Benjamin Fisher formed the partnership of Cushman, Fisher & Co., I remaining in his employ. In February, 1894, I continued in the same business with E. H. Rollins & Sons, where I remained until February, 1897, when I went with Parkinson & Burr, 53 State Street, to open and take charge of a bond department." Published in August, 1895, "Investment Laws," a condensation of laws governing classes of investments allowed savings banks, trust companies, insurance companies, etc., throughout the greater part of the United States; in October, 1896, "Savings Bank Investments," a work of the same character as the preceding. In February, 1898, published a second edition of the above.

SAMUEL PRESCOTT HALL.

"Immediately after leaving college, in 1893, I went to Chicago to visit the World's Fair, as a guest of J. G. M. Glessner (Harvard, '94). I remained in Chicago for about three weeks and then returned to my home. In September, 1893, I entered the employ of Haydell & Shepard as supervising architect, and had charge of the erection of a church, villa, stable, and pumping station, all on the estate of Mr. Elliot F. Shepard, at Scarborough, N. Y. After two years thus spent, I studied with the same firm for a year, and then entered the employ of McKim, Mead & White, as a draughtsman and designer, with whom I still remain. In the fall of 1894 I joined the Elizabeth Athletic Club, and played centre on the football team of that organization for three years. This last fall I joined the Knickerbocker Athletic Club of New York, and played right-guard on that eleven this past season."

GEORGE DANIEL HAMMOND.

Spent the year 1893–94 as a graduate student, and travelling Fellow of Harvard at the University of Berlin. In the year 1894–95 was instructor in History and English at St. Lawrence University, at Canton, N. Y. In 1895–96 was assistant professor of History in the University of Illinois. "I have, since August, 1896, been in poor health and unable to prosecute my work. Although the disease is tuberculosis with its seat in the lungs, it has not, thanks to a change of climate and of habits, made advances of consequence. Married on July 25, 1895, at Liberty, N. Y., to Lizzie Lowell, of Syracuse, N. Y."

Since the above was written the secretary has learned that Hammond died January 14, 1899, at Asheville, N. C., of the disease of which he wrote. Hammond was born at Peterborough, N. Y., in 1864. He writes in his Class life-blank as follows: —

"I attended school continuously from my seventh to my seventeenth year. At graduation at the High School at Syracuse, N. Y. (where I had lived throughout the time of my school life), I felt it necessary to begin some work that would yield money. Failing to find anything more congenial, I became bell-boy of a hotel in the city of my home. After a year at this work, which ended in a severe illness, I turned to other means of getting a living. After some ten months at a boy's work in an office, I was given charge of a set of books, and continued working in the same office until 1889. Various influences then caused me to resume the studies dropped in 1880. At the latter time a college course seemed out of the question, nor did I really desire it. Friends had urged me to make the attempt, but without kindling any interest in me. I now decided to abandon a business career, in which I had been fairly successful. As my plans took shape, I concluded to spend two years in study at Syracuse University, meanwhile continuing my office work, and then to enter Harvard. This plan was carried out. For two years I succeeded in paying all expenses (about the same as those at Harvard) and in doing a little more than the prescribed college work. Entering Harvard in the fall of 1891, I devoted myself more strictly to study and did not attempt much else. Ever since I can remember I have had a passion for reading. In early years little direction was given to this except that I was encouraged to attack much that was clearly beyond me. Many books of history and biography were offered and eagerly read before I was twelve years of age. While in business I continued reading, though never with much conscious purpose, or under any guidance, and never with much regularity. Membership in a lyceum, editing a monthly church 'paper' and some minor activities helped too to keep alive an interest in intellectual pursuits. My companionships were not in general especially stimulating, however. Perhaps a new turn was given in part by associations with a college friend of a younger brother, who entered college two years in advance of myself."

LEARNED HAND.

Returned to the Law School after graduation; received the degree of A.M. in 1894 and of LL.B. [cum laude] in 1896. Travelled in Europe during the summer of 1896 with D. R. Vail, '93. Studied law in Albany until March 4, 1897, then entered the office of Hale & Bulkeley, in New York, for a few months; was afterwards in the office of Hun & Johnston in Albany, N. Y. Became a member of the firm on January 1, 1899. Is a member of the Fort Orange Club of Albany, of the University Club of New York City, and of the Harvard Club of Eastern and Central New York. Has gone into municipal politics to a considerable extent, and has addressed several political meetings.

JOHN GODDARD HART.

Received the degree of A.M. from Harvard University in 1894. Is at present instructor at Harvard.

JOHN HENRY HARWOOD.

Returned to the Law School after graduation, receiving the degree of LL.B. [cum laude] in 1896; has since been practising law in Boston; from July to October, 1896, with Hayes &

Williams; from October, 1896, to September, 1897, with Matthews & Thompson, and then for a time alone, and lately as a member of the firm of Harwood & Dodge ('93), with offices in the Tremont Building.

DRAYTON FRANKLIN HASTIE.

"I spent the year 1894–95 as a student in the Law Department of the University of Virginia, where I secured a diploma in Constitutional and International Law. As the common-law system of pleading only is taught there, I entered the New York Law School in New York City, chiefly to study Code pleading, and in June, 1896, the degree of B.L. or L.B. — I forget which, and it does n't matter — was conferred upon me by that institution. Soon afterwards I was duly admitted to the New York City bar. While in New York I also studied in the law offices of Vanderpoel, Cuming and Goodwin, 2 Wall Street, and Lexow, Mackellar and Wells, 19 Liberty Street, and saw something of politics and heard much of 'Investigation' in the latter.

"In the autumn of 1896 I returned to Charleston, S. C.; was admitted to the South Carolina bar and in due time to the United States courts, and am now engaged, with offices at 32 Broad Street, in comparatively active practice in all the courts.

"I have so far taken no part in politics here; they are not enticing under the present governmental régime. The only offices, therefore, that I have held are those that are incidental to the law, such as receiver, assignee, and executor; but I have found these very pleasant, and like that useful member of society, Oliver Twist, am anxious for more. Since leaving Harvard I have become a member of the St. Anthony Club, 29 East 28th Street, New York, and the Carolina Yacht Club of Charleston; also of other social organizations, such as the St. Cecelia Society, which are so local in their nature that their enumeration would be tedious. I am still a bachelor and my winters are spent at 'Magnolia,' a family seat on the Ashley River near this city, where I am planning a tea farm, practically a new industry in this country. I hope that the Governor of North Carolina will soon speak to the Governor of South Carolina with a tea-cup in his hand. My summer travels are generally confined to the western North Carolina mountains, though in 1897 I wandered as far North as Rangeley, Maine."

HORATIO HATHAWAY, Jr.

Has resided, since leaving college, at New Bedford, Mass. Is a member of the Union Club and Tavern Club of Boston. Travelled abroad in the spring of 1898, visiting Spain, Algiers, Italy, and France. Married January 15, 1898, at Taunton, Mass., to Mabel Lovering.

CHARLES SUMNER HAWES.

Has lived in Cambridge since graduation; has been engaged in hotel work, ranging from clerk to manager, and from October, 1894, to July, 1895, acted as travelling tutor; is at present with the Harvard Dining Association as Auditor. Spent two years, 1895–97, in the Harvard Medical School, and expects eventually to return and take his degree. Travelled abroad, visiting the Azores and Madeira Islands, Gibraltar, Algiers, Egypt, Malta, Holy Land, Syria, Constantinople, Italy, Athens, Paris, and London. Married on December 15, 1897, at Winchester, Mass., to Frances Wilson.

OSCAR BROWN HAWES.

Is pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Toronto, Ontario.

JOHN HEISS, A.B. (Wittenberg Coll.), 1892.

Received the degree of A.M. from Wittenberg College in 1895. Was principal of Bradford Academy, 1893–94; was a student of Germanic philology at Leipzig, 1894–95; was instructor in French, German, and Latin in Colgate Academy, Hamilton, N. Y., 1895–96; was instructor in the same branches in Mr. Leal's school for boys, Plainfield, N. J., 1896–98. Is at present in the Graduate School as assistant in German and student of Germanic Philology.

FREDERICK GRANTHAM HENDERSON.

Has not been heard from.

WILLIAM JULIAN HENDERSON.

Has taught in the High School at Auburn, R. I.; has tutored, studied, and done various other kinds of work; is making teaching his profession.

OLIVER BRIDGES HENSHAW.

Died July 4, 1898, at Camp Alger, Virginia. He had been in camp for five weeks as a private with the Brooklyn Invincibles, or Troop C of the New York National Guard. On July 3, while assisting a comrade to control a frightened horse, he was kicked in the abdomen. He was born in Jamaica Plain, Dec. 27, 1870, and prepared for college in Cambridge public schools. While in college he was a member of the Delta Upsilon, the English Club, the Philosophical Club, and the Religious Union. He devoted most of his attention to the study of English, History, Political Economy, and especially Philosophy, twice receiving honorable mention in this branch. After graduating he spent two years as instructor in Philosophy in the University of California, receiving the degree of A.M. from that university in 1894. In 1895–96 he was in the post-graduate school at Harvard. In the year 1896–97 he was abroad on the Walker Travelling Fellowship, studying at Munich and Berlin, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1897 at the University of Berlin. On his return he became associated with John Brisben Walker as secretary of the Cosmopolitan University, and assistant editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, where he remained until he went to Camp Alger with his regiment. In 1894 he published the "Symposium of Plato," his thesis for the M.A. degree, and had published various articles, scientific and philosophical, in the magazines. His thesis for Ph.D. was on "The Principle of Individuation." Among his other papers were: "The Philosophy of the Mind;" "Synthetic Philosophy;" "The Philosophy of Kant, Hegel, and Duns Scotus." He left all his books on Philosophy, numbering about two hundred volumes, to the Harvard College Library.

Among the members of the Class who enlisted for the war with Spain, Henshaw was the only man who lost his life in the service. His whole life had been eminently that of a student and a scholar, and, in his connection with the Cosmopolitan University and the Cosmopolitan Magazine, he had unlimited opportunities to accomplish the ends for which he had so successfully fitted himself. All these hopes and ambitions he gave up to act as a volunteer soldier in the service of his country. All honor to such a character!

HENRY ARTHUR HILDRETH.

" Immediately after graduation I went to Chicago for the World's Fair, and with the intention of locating there permanently; but failing to make satisfactory arrangements I returned to Boston the last of July, and August 18, 1893, entered the office of the National Manufacturing Co., of Worcester, as general assistant, and later as confidential clerk in the president's office. The company is one of the oldest and largest engaged in the manufacture of wire goods, wire railings, house-furnishing goods, and general wire work; with factories at Worcester and Lowell, offices in Boston and New York, and agencies in the principal cities throughout the country. At the annual meeting of the stockholders in the following year I was elected secretary of the company and given a place on the board of directors, and about a year later, when ill-health compelled the resignation of the president of the company, I was chosen by the directors to fill the position left vacant by the resignation, and take up the management of the company.

JOSEPH CLARK HOPPIN.

"On leaving Cambridge after graduation I went to the American School at Athens for the winter, and while there assisted at the excavations conducted by the School at the Heræum of Argos. The following summer I studied at the University of Berlin, and then went to the University of Munich to study archæology during the winter of 1894–95, under Professor Frutwängler. I spent two months in Greece during the spring of '96 as assistant at the Heræum excavations, which were then completed. Since that time (with the exception of the summer of '96, when I went to Munich to take the degree of Doctor of Philosophy) I have resided entirely at Athens, where I have been engaged in preparing for publication the vase fragments found at our excavations. During this last year I have held the position in the American School there of lecturer on Greek vases.

"My life during the last five years has little to show except hard work and the acquiring of a fairly intimate knowledge of modern Greece and its language. It has been an extremely pleasant experience for me, as with all the demands of work I have been able to spend a few months of each summer in America and renew old college associations. I intend now to settle in Boston, where I hope to find opportunities for exercising my profession by teaching, etc. I am not married." Hoppin has recently been appointed associate professor in Art and Archæology at Bryn Mawr College; he will offer courses in Greek sculpture, in Greek vase painting, and a post-major Greek course in Pausanias.

TRACY HOPPIN.

"In the spring of 1894, after one year's work in the Harvard Law School, I came abroad, and have been drifting about ever since in Europe, trying to recover from a very severe nervous breakdown. The doctors give me one year more. My intention then is to study to be an artist. My permanent address is always care of Morgan Haryes & Co., 31 Boulevard Haussmann, Paris."

ELWIN LINCOLN HOUSE.

Received the degree of S.T.B. from Boston University in 1894. Married May 10, 1883, Sherlie D. Grow, at Lebanon, N. H. Children: Elmer Elwin House, born December 8, 1884; Arthur Everett House, born November 16, 1886; Ray House, born March 1, 1887, died March 28, 1896. Was pastor of the Second Congregational church at Attleboro, Mass., until the outbreak of the war, and writes as follows: "I was enrolled in the 5th Mass. Volunteers, as chaplain, June 22, 1898, at Attleboro, and was mustered in July 1 at South Framingham. I was discharged at Greenville, S. C., March 31, 1899, with the regiment. I resigned my commission as chaplain after peace had been declared, at the urgent request of my church, but the colonel refused to accept my resignation, stating that 'the services of this officer have been of such inestimable value to the regiment that I deem it necessary to retain his services at all hazards.' I therefore resigned my church and went back to my regiment.

"In South Carolina I was especially called upon to deliver many addresses, speaking especially for unity between the North and South, and my thirty-odd addresses in that State were of such value that many kind words were said, and the leading university of the South asked me to accept this coming June a D. D. as a recognition of my work in this direction.

"I spoke also to all the leading educational institutions of South Carolina, and addressed the soldiers four times a week. I have, since my return, been elected as chaplain of the Mass. Veterans of the late Spanish-American war, General Bancroft, another Harvard man, being president of the same. Our regiment did not go into battle, but did harder duty, that of garrison work.

"My address at present is 12 Centre Avenue, Dorchester, Mass."

Child: Karl Frederick Jackson, born December 18, 1895.

PATRICK TRACY JACKSON, Jr.

"After leaving college I entered the Boston Blower Co. of Hyde Park, Mass., as an apprentice, and spent a year there studying and becoming a machinist. I worked as a hand, wore overalls, got up at 5.30 every day, and had dirty hands as long as I stayed there. I found no opening in this place; when I left I was earning $3.33 a week, and I decided to enter cotton manufacturing, in which my family have been prominent for three generations. I spent the next year in Lowell in the Massachusetts, Boott, and Merrimack corporations, working amongst the machines with the help for the most part, and receiving no pay. I decided that my best opening lay in fancy weaving and designing. The South even then was competing sharply on coarse plain goods, and I believed that our best chance lay in making finer and better cloths. Following this plan I spent the next year in the weave and designing rooms of the Boston Manf. Co. of Waltham, which does the fanciest cotton weaving in this country. At the end of this time I was ready for a responsible position, and soon found it as designer of the Dwight Mills of Chicopee. This was my first salaried position, and though not overburdened with pay I could support myself comfortably on my earnings and have a little left over. I had 300 fancy looms under my charge, and did all the designing and made all the sample cloths that were needed; in addition I kept the time and supplies of the iron, wood, and paint shops of the corporation, and acted as draughtsman. I enjoyed this place very much. I was very busy and things as a whole went well. I helped organize a nine in the mill and was made captain, and we played several exciting games. I joined the Conn. Valley Harvard Club and the Springfield Country Club, and played on that nine too. Last September, 1897, I was offered a position as one of the designers of the Arlington Mills in the Boston house of Harding, Whitman & Co.; the place had great possibilities in it and the salary was three times as large; so I accepted it and have been there since. There is much more responsibility connected with my work now and much greater knowledge required, as the Arlington Mills are the biggest worsted dress-goods mills in the country and make every grade of cloth. The work is pleasant and very interesting, and the hours are easy to what I have been accustomed since college. On April 11, 1898, I married Anne Smoot, of Brookline, Mass. We are living at 9 Pinckney Street, Boston."

THOMAS AUGUSTUS JAGGAR, Jr.

Has lived in Cambridge as instructor in Geology, except for a year spent in study abroad at Munich and Heidelberg, and two summers occupied with camp life in the Rocky Mountains as geologist in the United States survey. Received the degree of A. M. in 1894 and Ph.D. in 1897; was appointed assistant in Geology at Harvard in 1893, and instructor in 1895; answers the questions as to his travels as follows: "In the summer of 1893 and again in 1897, I made adventurous journeys with mule pack-trains through the Absaroka range of the Rocky Mountains, east of the Yellowstone Park; this is one of the wildest and least known ranges of the Rockies. I was assistant to Mr. Arnold Hague, geologist in charge of the Yellowstone Park division of the United States survey. The work consisted in mapping, collecting specimens, climbing high peaks, and inspecting mining districts. I twice narrowly escaped being thrown from a precipice: once in consequence of a horse falling on me, and once from dislodging a large boulder; on a third occasion I was accidentally shot at. I spent the summer of 1894 in travel in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, and France; the winter semester of 1894–95 at the University of Munich in geological studies, and the summer of 1895 in the University of Heidelberg." His chief work in the University has been to establish a laboratory of experimental geology; has given a half-course on this subject for two years. He had charge of the Harvard

Travelling Summer School of Geology last summer, and in collaboration with Professor Shaler this year gave a new half-course on the "Structural and Dynamical Geology of the United States." Has published the following: —

1. (With R. T. Jackson.) "Studies of Melonites multiporus." Bull. Geol. Soc. Am., Vol. VII., pp. 135–170.

2. "The Pirna and Kirchberg Zones of Contact Metamorphism." Science, Vol. II., No. 50, Dec. 13, 1895.

3. "On the Geological Work of Vortices and Eddies." Science, Vol. III., No. 62, March 6, 1896.

4. "Note on Penning's Field Geology. Science, Vol. III., No. 67, April 10, 1896.

5. Edited "Abstracts of the Geological Conference of Harvard University," in Science (through the years 1895–96, 1896 97, 1897–98.

6. "Current Studies in Experimental Geology." Science, Vol. III., No. 71, May 8, 1896.

7. "A Simple Instrument for inclining a preparation in the Microscope." American Journal of Science, III., 1897. p. 129.

8. "A Microsclerometer for determining the Hardness of Minerals." American Journal of Science, IV., 1897, December, p. 399.

9. "Ein Mikrosklerometer zur Härtebestimmung, Zeitschrift für Krystallographie, etc." XXIX., Heft 3, p. 262.

10. "An occurrence of Acid Pegmatite in Diabase." American Geologist, March, 1898.

11. "Some Conditions affecting Geyser Eruption." American Journal of Science (in press).

12. "Death Gulch, a Natural Bear Trap." Popular Sci. Monthly (in press).

He is preparing for publication a book on experimental geology. The subjects of his Ph. D. theses were: —

1. "A Microsclerometer for determining the Hardness of Minerals."

2. "The Geologic Evidence from fragmental Inclusions contained in certain Dikes of the Boston Basin."

THEODORE WESLEY KOCH, A.B. (Univ. of Penn.), 1892.

"Since leaving college I have been devoting myself to the study of Dante. I have published 'Dante in America; a historical and bibliographical study,' Boston, Ginn, 1896, and have compiled a list of 'Additions to the Dante collection in Harvard College Library, 1895–97,' for the Sixteenth Annual Report of the Dante Society. In December, 1895, I assumed the charge of the Dante collection presented to Cornell University by Mr. Willard Fiske, a former professor and librarian of Cornell. This collection is the largest of its kind in the world, numbering over sixty-three hundred volumes, and the catalogue upon which I am engaged will be, when completed, the nearest approach to a complete bibliography of Dante that has yet been printed. The first part of the catalogue, containing a list of Dante's works, in the original and in translations, will be ready in April, 1898."

LOUIS PECK SANDERS.

" Studied law after graduation in the law office of my father, W. F. Sanders, at Helena, Montana; took law examinations December, 1895, and was admitted to practice in all courts of the State of Montana; began practice in Helena in January, 1896; have been junior member of the law firm of Sanders & Sanders, composed of W. F. Sanders, J. U. Sanders, and L. P. Sanders, since January, 1896, practising in Helena and Butte, where the above firm has opened a branch office, of which I take control. Belong to Sound Money League. It may appear unworthy of note to Eastern college men, but I derive no small amount of satisfaction in advancing the doctrine of sound money in the storm centre of financial heresies. My views on monetary science are the result of studies pursued in Harvard, hence the above may possibly be relevant. Took a more or less energetic part in the last national campaign, but all sound money sentiment was overwhelmingly defeated; also labored in behalf of Helena in the local struggle of 1894, wherein corporate greed and influence sought to remove the capital of the State from Helena to Anaconda, but fortunately failed." Published and edited the "Sanders Edition of Montana Constitution, Codes, and Statutes," adopted by State legislature, in effect, July 1, 1895. Served at Manila in the 1st Montana as adjutant of a battalion.

PHILIP HENRY SAVAGE.

Died June 4, 1899, at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, where he had undergone an operation for appendicitis a few days before.

The secretary quotes bodily, with some corrections, the following article from The Christian Register, written by a friend who was in a position to know and appreciate Savage's ability: —

"In the death of Mr. Philip H. Savage a young man of rare promise, already beginning to mature into achievement, is lost to the world. He had shown in his executive work at the library and in the two volumes of verse which he had published a union of abilities not commonly found.

"He was born in North Brookfield, Massachusetts, Feb. 11, 1868, the son of Rev. Minot J. Savage. He graduated from the English High School in Boston in the class of 1885. For the four years following he was in business, which he left to enter Harvard, where he took his A.B. in 1893. He belonged to the Signet and O. K., and was one of the editors of The Harvard Monthly. The following year he spent in the Harvard Divinity School, but he relinquished his intention of entering the ministry. In the fall of 1895 he returned to the University as an assistant in the English department, taking the A.M. degree at the following Commencement, when he read a paper on Whitman and Thoreau as forces in American literature.

"In the summer he was appointed an instructor in English at the Institute of Technology, under Prof. Arlo Bates; but he resigned the appointment in October to become secretary to the librarian, Mr. Putnam, at the Boston Public Library. Under Mr. Putnam he was trained in the executive work of a great library, until, when Mr. Putnam went to Washington, he had fitted himself for the increased responsibility which immediately fell to his share. Mr. Savage had published, as has been said, two volumes of verse: "First Poems and Fragments" (1895), and "Poems," issued last autumn. He had been a more or less frequent contributor of verse to The Atlantic Monthly. His first volume showed something more than promise; and the second, with its fine qualities of refined expression and acute love of nature, was reserved, careful, and significant in expression, proving him a poet of real achievement."

HUNTINGTON SAVILLE.

TOWNSEND HODGES SOREN.

"Immediately on leaving college I entered the employ of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., and am still with that company.

"My work started at hard labor in the machine shops, and has continued through various stages; that is, through the shops, testing room, engineering department, to position of engineer of the Southern States, and later to position in the construction department in Schenectady, where I have general supervision of all construction work done outside of the factories.

"I am supposed to be an Electrical Engineer, having obtained that title by right of eminent domain and not through any degree. My work has carried me over a considerable part of the Eastern States, and into every town of size in the Southern States, and to very many of the smaller places.

"My life has been a wandering one, and I have not stayed in any one place a sufficient length of time to get tangled up in any matrimonial deal.

"This nomadic career is also responsible for my not having joined any of the larger social clubs where I have been situated. While I was in Atlanta a Harvard Club was started, and this winter another has been organized in Utica, covering the section of eastern and central New York. It has been my pleasure to have attended both of these clubs as a member.

" In answer to your question asking for any other remarks of interest to the Class, one or two social problems which it has been my opportunity to study might be commented on at length. I will only say, however, that during the years of '93 and '94, as a resident of a small manufacturing town, and in the capacity of an ordinary laborer, working in the machine shops, the results of the panic were brought home to me in a way that cannot easily be forgotten.

" It showed one thing, however, and that is, that a corporation is not without a soul, and that although there was very little to be done, the factory was run, and as many men carried as possible, at reduced wages and reduced time. In spite of this, there were murmurs in the shops of strike, and, in some places, even anarchy.

" The second point is that of the negro question in the South. Going there as a Northerner, my ideas were as most Northerners'. After living there a year or more, and seeing the negro and negro life in all its phases, from the convict in the coal mines and lumber districts to the colored population in the larger cities, it would seem that after all we are possibly not, in general, so well informed on this subject as we should be to judge intelligently of it.

" Living in the South as a Southerner and visiting different districts, my opportunities were rather exceptional for studying the situation, and gave me a deeper insight into the actual conditions than any visitor, going there for the purpose of studying the question, would be likely to obtain. The result has been to lead me to doubt if, after all, we are on the right track in attempting to deal with this most grave question from the North along the present lines.

" In saying this, however, I do not wish to be understood as in any way throwing the slightest reflection on the sincerity of those who are endeavoring to better the condition of the colored race."

HORACE CLAFLIN SOUTHWICK.

Has been studying architecture in New York and Paris; is going abroad on June 1, for a year or more.

FRANK ENOS SOULE.

Since leaving college has been in the glass business in Boston with the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co., 30 Sudbury Street.

In January, 1896, entered the St. Louis Medical College. Has been secretary of the 21st Ward Sound Money Democratic Club of St. Louis. Has published articles on the St. Louis Union Station in Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly. Is a member of the Harvard Club and the Academy of Science of St. Louis.

JOHN CLARENCE TAUSSIG.

"After leaving college I came to my home in St. Louis, where I have been living ever since.

"In the fall of '93 I entered the St. Louis Law School, and received the degree of LL.B. from that school in June, 1895.

"Immediately after taking my last examination in June, I rushed to New York, where I met Goetz, '93; and we two had a glorious trip in Europe during the summer.

"When I came home in September I was admitted to the St. Louis bar. In one sense I have been practising law, having my office in the Bank of Commerce Building; but I may be more accurate if I should say that my occupation has been that of a lawyer, and occasionally when some blessed individual came to me as a client I practised law. At any rate, I have had spare moments in which to read law. I am not married.

"I have been very much interested in politics. I was very much aroused in the presidential campaign of '96, and was an ardent gold bug. I made a number of speeches for the Republican ticket; but judging by the way Missouri went they could not have done very much good. I have taken as great a part in municipal politics as the bosses have permitted me to take. I have been against the machine and thus far the machine has always won. In April, 1897, I ran for delegate to the municipal convention in St. Louis, but as I was 'agin' the machine I was not elected at the primaries and consequently did not sit in the convention."

WILLIAM OSGOOD TAYLOR.

HARRY LORENZO TEETZEL.

"Residence and occupation: 817 Newhall Street, Milwaukee; musician (composer); unmarried. Member of Milwaukee Harvard Club. Have not taken to politics beyond voting for whom I consider the best man. Held no office. Literary contributions: stories, poems, etc., to newpapers and magazines, among them the North Western Magazine, The Sunny South, etc. Published compositions: 'Tuba Mirum' (from Requiem Mass), Basso solo with orchestral accompaniment, — published by H. L. Teetzel, Milwaukee, 'Twilight' (Nocturne for piano), published by Oliver Ditson Co., Boston, Mass. Have not travelled. I went through college being intended for a doctor. On graduating I followed my own inclination and adopted music as my profession. Since leaving college I have studied unremittingly to gain a mastery over my art. I have completed compositions covering all branches of vocal and instrumental work, which, being for the most part of a serious nature, have not as yet widely met public attention. Most of my orchestral works have been produced here by the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra under Christopher Bach. None of my choral works have as yet been performed."

DERRICK ANTHONY TEPASKE, A.B. (Iowa Coll.), 1892.

"There is but little to be said about myself that could interest a chronicler.

"Was instructor in the Northwestern Classical Academy, at Orange City, Iowa, from 1893 to 1897. Admitted to the bar, 1897. Practising law since then. Now located at Sioux Centre, Iowa. Member of the law firm of Orr & TePaske.

"Am not married; have not been to war; and have done nothing very noted."

LOUIS BARTLETT THACHER.

"In October, 1893, I entered the employment of H. C. Thacher & Co., 16 Pearl Street, Boston, wool merchants. In March, 1894, became a member of the firm of Wilbur H. Davis & Co., felt shoe manufacturers, Haverhill, Mass., with offices at 93 Summer Street, Boston. February, 1896, became a member of the firm of H. C. Thacher & Co., now conducting a banking business at 14 Pearl Street, Boston. In December of that year dissolved my co-partnership with Mr. Wilbur H. Davis. Was presidential elector in 1896 on the Palmer & Buckner ticket for the Fourteenth Massachusetts Congressional District. The summer after graduation I spent a few weeks with S. C. Davis ('93) on a walking trip through the Tyrol and Switzerland. Have not since taken any very extended journeys."

Went to the Law School, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1894. Has since been practising law in Boston and living in Jamaica Plain.

HOWE TOTTEN.

Attended the Law School of Georgetown University, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1895, and the degree of LL.M. in 1896. Is a member of the Century Club, the Chevy Chase Country Club, and the Harvard Club of Washington, the University Club of Philadelphia, the Loyal Legion, and the Maryland Republican Club. Spent three months in the summer of 1897 travelling in Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Bavaria, Austria, and France.

EDWARD SANDS TOWNSEND.

"I graduated in the Class of 1892, having completed the four years in three years. I went from college to the Law School and graduated in 1895. In April, 1895, I took the examination for admission to the Suffolk County bar of Massachusetts and passed, being sworn in office June, 1895. I began to practise for myself at 19 Milk Street, Boston, remaining there till November, 1895, and then moving to 19 Congress Street, Boston, where I have remained since. In August, 1895, I received an appointment as Justice of the Peace. In February, 1897, I married Georgia D. Sanborn, and on my return from a six weeks' trip to Lakewood, N. J., Baltimore, Md., Hagerstown, Md., Williamsport, Md., Antietam, Md., Gettysburg, Pa., Reading, Pa., and New York City, I went to housekeeping in Boston, and then removed later to Arlington and from there to West Medford."

FREDERICK TOWNSEND.

In January, 1893, spent two weeks in Cuba; from August 15, 1893, to September 15, 1894, made a tour of the world via Vancouver, Japan, China, Straits Settlements, Java, Burmah, India, Egypt, Greece, Smyrna, Constantinople, Crimea, Caucasus, Caspian Sea, Inland Russia, then via Gulf of Finland to North Germany and so to Vienna, Budapest, etc., then west to the Rhine, England, back to the continent, Bayreuth, Switzerland, Paris, England, and home. Made both trips with A. J. Coolidge, '92. Returned to the Law School in 1894, receiving the degree of LL.B. [cum laude] in 1897. Has since been practising law in Albany, N. Y., connected with the firm of Tracy, Cooper, & Rathbone. Is director in the Albany & Bethlehem Turnpike Road, and trustee of the Albany Academy, and a member of the Fort Orange Club. Writes under a recent date: "In October, 1898, I was admitted to the law firm of Tracy, Cooper & Rathbone. This spring I have been laid up with typhoid fever at Camden, S. C., where I had gone for my health."

WILLIS MERRICK TOWNSEND.

CHARLES GERSHOM VAN BRUNT.

Writes as follows: "'92 is really my Class. I was prevented by illness from taking my exams that year, but I had always intended to take one year post graduate, and that was what my work in '93 practically amounted to, though theoretically, of course, my Class is '93." He is connected with the Consolidated Kansas City Smelting and Refining Co. of Argentine, Kansas.

HUGH FLOURNOY VAN DEVENTER, S.B. (Univ. of Mich.), 1892.

Since graduation has resided at Knoxville, Tennessee, engaged in mining and quarrying. Is president and treasurer of the Georgia Slate Co. and trustee of the Cappa & Bowen Mining Co. Is an active Democrat.

THOMAS WAYLAND VAUGHN, S. B. (Tulane Univ.), 1889.

Returned to the Graduate School, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1894; has been assistant geologist to the United States Geological survey since August, 1894. Is a member of the Geological, Biological, Anthropological, and Entomological societies of Washington, and of the American Association of Conchologists; a Fellow of the Geological Society of America; member of the Harvard Club of Washington, the Cosmos Club of Washington, and several small social clubs of Harvard men in Washington. Has published a number of technical reports and articles on geology and paleontology. Has travelled widely in the United States doing geological work. Spent nearly a year abroad in Germany, Russia, Austria, Italy, France, and England; attended the meeting of the International Congress of Geologists at St. Petersburg.

ENOCH HOWARD VICKERS, A. B.(West Virginia Univ.), 1890.

Returned to the Graduate School, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1894. Has been a student of social and political science; was assistant in Government and Law at Harvard in 1894–95, and Robert Treat Paine Fellow of Social Science in 1895–97. Writes as follows: "Visited the World's Fair, Detroit, and Niagara Falls, 1893. Spent three years in travel and study on Continental Europe. Sailed from New York, July 17, 1895. Arrived at Antwerp, made a tour of Belgium, Holland, crossed to Cologne and ascended the Rhine to Mayence. Proceeded by rail to Frankfort-on-the-Main, thence to Brunswick, where I resided three months for the study of German. Studied at Berlin University the winter and summer semesters 1895–96. During the vacation, March and April, travelled through Germany as far south as Munich, proceeded thence to Salzburg and Vienna. After spending a month at Vienna, visited Budapest, traversing the Danube. Returned via Vienna to Prague, Dresden, and Berlin. At the end of the summer semester at Berlin I travelled through Germany, passing through Frankfort-on-the-Main and the region of the Black Forest, visiting particularly Heidelberg, Baden-Baden, Freiburg. Having entered Switzerland at Basle, I made an extensive tour in that country. From Neuchâtel, I passed, via Pontarlier and Dijon, to Paris, late in September, 1896. The two years 1896–98 have been spent by me in study at Paris and vicinity. Have returned from Paris via Havre, on 'La Touraine,' to New York, June, 1898, and am now visiting at my home in West Virginia."

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD.

"After my graduation I went abroad for nine months, travelling in northern Africa, Egypt, Turkey, Greece, and Austria until September, 1894, when I returned to take up an appointment as assistant in history to Professor Hart. My activity in this line very nearly came to an abrupt end in December, when I came down with an attack of appendicitis which kept me away from my work until late in April. In June, 1896, I left Cambridge, and after a flying trip to Europe became a reporter on the Philadelphia Press in November, staying in that position six months, as interesting months as can come to any man in times of peace. In May, 1897, I joined the New York Evening Post, with which I expect to be permanently connected. I have served the paper in various capacities, as supplement editor, assistant telegraph editor, and as a member of the Board of Trustees, and am glad to report that we now have at this date (June 1, '99) ten Harvard men filling different positions. My leisure time I devote to political reform work, chiefly with the Citizens' Union and City Club. As I am neither married nor engaged, and am even without 'intentions,' I cannot add the slightest touch of romance to this prosaic and uninteresting narrative."

BERNARD WILLIAM VOGEL.

Has been connected with the firm of William Vogel & Son, retail clothiers, Broadway and Houston streets, since 1891.

HENRY INGERSOLL WAITE.

His father writes that since graduation he has been at home ill with nervous prostration at 274 Otis Street, West Newton, Mass.

GEORGE WALCOTT.

"I left Cambridge in January, 1894, and have since then been in the dry goods commission business in New York with Messrs. Noyes, Bausher & Gerrish of 19 Thomas Street, agents for the Amoskeag and other large New England cotton mills. For the past three years I have been living in Nutley, New Jersey, one of the prettiest suburbs of New York, and have spent most of my leisure time on the golf-links.

"I was married on December 5, 1894, in Brooklyn, N. Y., to Miss Lilla Evelyn Nickerson of Brooklyn, the daughter of Andrew Crosby and Anna (Rogers) Nickerson. My son, Henry Richards Walcott, was born May 6, 1896, at Nutley.

"Besides belonging to the Harvard Club of New York I am a member of such local clubs as the Nutley Golf Club, Nutley Field Club, and Yanticaw Gun Club.

"Except for casting my ballot regularly I have taken no part in politics.

"My address is P. O. Box 1704, New York City, but communications addressed to 11 Waterhouse Street, Cambridge, Mass., will always reach me."

JULIAN CONSTANTINS WALKER.

Is a member of the Agassiz Scientific Society of Rockport, Ohio; has not taken part in politics in a public way "any more than to procure local option in Birmingham." Married May 1, 1895, at Axtel, Ohio, to Mary Louisa Sperry.

OSCAR LEON WATKINS.

"I resided first at Greenville, Pa., as professor of Mathematics in Thiel College; got a leave of absence to go to Germany for two years, but suddenly changed my mind to work awhile for outdoor rest with Ginn & Co., of Boston. I have charge of the field work for them in Indiana, southwestern Ohio, and northern Kentucky. Cannot say how long it will be ere I go back to teaching. I am a member of the Shakespeare Club of Indianapolis; have just been invited to join the University Club, composed of graduates and a few literati, such as James Whitcomb Riley, etc. I shall probably accept. I am to go to the Lake Country in England in September (1898). Am making a special study of Wordsworth; I have one of the best collections in America; have had a call to one of the largest institutions in the country to teach that period of literature to which Wordsworth contributed so much. However, for a while at least I shall continue at my present work." Married April 29, 1896, at Chillicothe, Ohio, to Rosa Mills. Child: Osric Mills Watkins, born February 6, 1897. "A promising candidate for Harvard already."

FRANK WHILTON WATTERS.

When last heard from was agent for the Thomas Coal Co., with an office at 34 South Main Street, Fall River, Mass.

LORENZO WEBBER.

Since leaving college in 1891 has been in the banking business in Portland, Michigan. Is a member of the firm of John A. Webber & Son; is also secretary of the Portland Electric Light & Power Co. Has published a pamphlet, "Descendants of Andrew Webber (1763–1845)." Has entered the course for non-residents at Illinois Wesleyan University for the degree of Ph. B.

JAMES AUSTIN WILDER.

Writes, " I have been at home very little; was mixed up in Hawaiian affairs as an advocate of the Hawaiian Republic; was offered the position of 'Fiscal Agent' or treasurer by Ali ben Mahommed, etc., etc., Sultan of Brunei; but as he wanted to borrow a 'monkey,' to seal the bargain, I declined. Lectured before the Punahow students on 'Borneo.' Appeared in dozens of amateur plays along the far eastern route. Have visited Japan (length and breath) Loo Choo Islands, China, Cochin China, Straits Settlements (Singapore, etc.), Borneo, Sarawak, Brunei, Labuan, and as far as Sandakkan in British North Borneo. In the trading schooner 'Esmeralda' visited the Mariana Islands, Ladrones, for five months, touching at all the islands. Visited Micronesia; spent Christmas, 1897, in Ponape, Jakoits Harbor. I have seen enough of savage life and am now heading for Europe. The milk of the cocoanut has palled. I have grown to want the good steam beer of civilization. My adventures may be published shortly under the title 'Pussing in the Pacific.' (Publishers wanted.) Have been ship-wrecked once; branded by the Spanish as a Yankee spy (escaped from durance vile by dint of a swift flight); but on the whole have enjoyed my nomadic life so far to the full.

Am now 'immune' to all tropical ills — they can't kill me. Am a member of the Pacific Club, Honolulu, and the Yokohama United Club, Yokohama."

HENRY FRANCIS WILLARD.

Received his degree with the Class of 1892. Was at the Medical School for three years. Has not replied to recent notices.

Frederick Palmer Kidder received his degree of A.B. (magna cum laude) in 1898.

CLASS FUND.

With the class fund all collected (or supposed to be), it seems a good opportunity to set out a complete account of our finances from the start, instead of beginning with the balance of the treasurer's last report. The accompanying account shows what has been spent on what may be called preliminaries, on those extra expenses which have to be met at the outset and on getting in the fund and putting it into income-bearing condition. It shows where we are, what income we have to rely on, and roughly what our expenses will probably be. The present investments are yielding $260 a year, which will doubtless be considerably decreased as the bonds mature and the investments have to be renewed. With the dinners costing $300 or more, the secretary's reports about $300, and the annual spread on Commencement Day $50, not to mention the other running expenses, it is clear that we must have more money in order to have dinners and reports with any frequency. It is also clear where this money should come from first of all. There are about $2000 unpaid subscriptions due from men who have not done what they said they would do, and what the other men in the class have done. We await the early pleasure of these delinquents.
